Charles:

Thank you for hosting my brief talk to the Chicago Council. I was certainly delighted with the opportunity to meet you and to share the evening with you and your wife Suzanne and the other members of the Council.

True to my promise I conveyed to Bill Casey your very warmest regards and he in turn was pleased with your remembrance. He told me that he had known you as Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs.

I trust all continues to go well with you and I hope that your next Council meeting is void of the wind and the rain that you all suffered to attend that night. I came away from that session a little smarter than when I arrived and that is always a profitable experience.

You have my wishes for continued good luck and thanks again.

Sincerely,

John N. McMahon
